

What might the campus buildings look like?

The International Linear Collider facilities will likely be located in a number of settings. These may include industrial, commercial, institutional or even rural or preserve land.

Of course, there are a wide variety of architectural styles and approaches for various contexts, purposes and tastes. One possible design approach to ILC campus buildings is that shown in these renderings. It is a design influenced by current architectural approaches found in university and research settings. It has simple lines and a balance of glass and siding materials. The look would blend well into a variety of environments.
