Medical Comments: A visiting grad student tripped while ascending steps in auditorium; fell to knees and cracked tip of right great toenail.
ESH Comments: The employee was in Ramsey Auditorium for Advanced C++ Training. While climbing the stairs to leave, holding her laptop, her right foot didn't clear one step, and she stumbled and fell hurting her right big toenail. She noticed that the toenail was bleeding, and immediately went to Medical where she received first aid treatment.
FE	FNAL	08/19/2008	08/19/2008	Yes		0	14	0	14	17549
Medical Comments: While replacing belts on air handler unit, employee's hand was pulled into fan pulley (by wind turning blades); caused laceration of right index and middle fingers. Was taken to local orthopedic clinic for treatment.
ESH Comments: The individual was replacing the belts on AC2 fan unit behind CDF when his index finger got trapped between the belt and the fan sheave. A review of the work procedures revealed that had the work been completed in a different manner, the injury would not have occurred. [The employee had locked out the power to the unit but did not use positive means to keep blade from rotating.]

On 8/23/08, a contractor security officer accidentally drove his security vehicle off the road on west-bound Pine Street and hit a large stump, totaling the vehicle. The airbag deployed, preventing more serious injuries. He was treated for lacerations & bruises and released at Delnor Hospital. The security contract is a direct contract with DOE so this injury is not included in our injury statistics.
