Medical Comments: Employee moved, then set down, two 20-lb. blocks, then felt pain in right and left thoracic area.

ESH Comments: The employee picked up two steel tiebars, 19" x 3.5" x 2", from a cargo van and then carried them together into the C0 Assembly Building. As the employee bent over and placed the two tiebars on the floor of the building, he felt immediate pain in both sides of his back. The employee reported to the Medical Office and was given first aid treatment. He was also given limitations which prevent him from performing some of his routine job functions, so the case is DART. The employee had handled the tiebars before and thought they weighed approximately 20 lbs. each. However, an actual measurement of a tiebar after the incident found that they weigh 30 lbs. each. The supervisor of the work involving the tiebars was informed of the measured weight of the tiebars and that personnel should lift and carry no more than one at a time.
